Lazy girl job

participate in the 'lazy girl jobs' trend and brag about their lax work days so they don't unintentionally out themselves and get fired". Insider. Retrieved - A lazy girl job is an easy, usually white-collar, job with good pay where an employee can quiet quit. The term was coined in 2023 by Gabrielle Judge, also known by screen name "antiworkgirlboss" on Instagram, in response to hustle culture, the Great Resignation, and worker exploitation. Although the trend is centered around women, she says men can have lazy girl jobs too. Judge explained the term was a marketing gimmick in order to raise awareness about "toxic workplace expectations" and is not about celebrating laziness.

Door problem

@Jessejames34 worked a long time to get it right. :-)" (Tweet) – via Twitter. Farokhmanesh, Megan (2021-03-12). "Why game developers can't get a handle on doors" - In video game development, the door problem is an analogy about game design that summarizes the contrast between the perceived simplicity of implementing a trivial feature and the actual difficult nature of the task that becomes more apparent in a development process. The term was coined in 2014 by Liz England, a game designer, while she was working for Insomniac Games.

The door problem originally models the difficulty of game development, but its core principle can be applied to many disciplines and areas of work.

Target school

it's just not going to work. I mean you never know, but from our experience we just don't have the resources. We don't give that person as much of a chance - Target school or target university is a term used in banking and finance, consulting, and law firms that refers to a university from which those firms and institutions actively recruit new talent. These universities are often prestigious and send significant numbers of their graduates into those firms each year and have broad alumni networks in the industry. A school is also often considered a target when a large number of City or Wall Street firms conduct an on-campus recruiting ("OCR"). A school's status as a target may vary slightly from industry to industry, firm to firm, and region to region, but in general is divided into target, semi-target, and non-target schools.

(she just doesn't - CyberFirst is a programme led by the National Cyber Security Centre to encourage young people to go into cyber security careers. The programme collaborated with the Government of the United Kingdom to run a "Rethink Reskill Reboot" campaign. The campaign is notorious for a 2020 advertisement Fatima's next job could be in cyber. (she just doesn't know it yet). The advert depicts a ballet dancer named Fatima and suggests that she should retrain to become a cyber security worker. Despite being part of the wider campaign involving adverts depicting multiple other workers such as barbers moving to tech work that had started in 2019, it received criticism from artists and politicians in October 2020 during the COVID-19 pandemic for being "patronising" and harmful towards the arts. It was subsequently taken down due to the backlash.
